F01 Forces other than damaging winds are also at work inside tornadoes (龙卷风).Sometimes,as the wind passes a house,the walls and ceiling burst apart as if a bomb had gone off inside.This explosion is caused by the low air pressure at the center of a tornado.

The pressure at the center of a tornado is usually 13 pounds per square inch.However,inside the house the air pressure is normal,about 15 pounds per square inch.The difference of 2 pounds per square inch between the inside and outside pressure may not seem like much.But suppose a tornado passes over a small building that measures 20 by 10 by 10 feet.On each square inch of the building,there is 2 pounds of pressure from the inside that is not balanced by air pressure outside the building.On the ceiling,that adds up to an unbalanced pressure of 57 ,600 pounds.The pressure of the four walls adds up to 172 ,800 pounds.

If windows are open in the building,some of the inside air will rush out through them.This will balance the pressure inside and outside the building.But if the windows are shut tightly,the huge inside pressure may cause the building to burst.

Unfortunately,heavy rain often occurs in the storms that later produce tornadoes,so people often shut their windows.This may cause far worse damage later.

- B.air pressure inside a tornado is less than the air pressure inside a building.
- C.air pressure at the center of a tornado is over 172 ,000 pounds.

[答案]B

24.What is the difference per square inch between the air pressure inside a building and the air pressure inside a tornado?

- A.Tornadoes may be formed.

G01 Green interior design is sometimes called sustainable design.It is about what is good and what is bad for people's health,for the environment and for saving energy.Of course,fashion is a big part of green interior design.But it is not the only thing being focused on.The keywords of green interior design are not“cool”,“modern”,“stylish”and“now”;but instead“sustainable”,“recycled”,“non-toxic”,“locally sourced”,“renewable”and “organic”.

For example,Italian leather couches might be the hot word in style.But a green interior designer cares more about whether the leather is from an organic source,whether the wood is from a sustainably managed forest,whether there was any toxic glues used in making the furniture and what was the carbon output in shipping Italian sofa from Europe to other areas.

Green design is about analyzing all aspects of a building to find ways to save energy and water,to find ways to reduce greenhouse gas emissions,to make the interior free of toxic chemicals and to use materials that are the most environmentally friendly.

Reducing energy bills is a primary aim of green interior design.Saving water is the second aim of green interior design.“Low VOC”,“zero VOC”and“VOC free”are new buzz phrases in the green design.From a green design point of view,the main concern is to choose indoor flooring,furniture,paint that are free of chemicals that pollute and make people sick.

I01 In 1909 an English newspaper offered ?1,000 to the first man to fly across the English Channel in an aeroplane.Today,modern jets cross it in minutes.But at that time it still seemed a good distance.The race to win the money soon became a race between two men.Both were very colorful.

One was Louis Bleriot.He owned a factory in France that made motor car lamps.He was already well known as a pilot because he had had accidents several times.Some people laughed at him.One man said,He may not be the first to fly across the Channel but he will certainly be the first to die in an accident! But Bleriot was really a good and brave pilot.He also had many good ideas about aeroplane design.

The other man was Hubert Latham.He was half French and half English.He took up flying when his doctors told him he had only a year to live.Oh,well,he said,if I'm going to die soon,I think I shall have a dangerous and interesting life now.

Latham was the first to try the flight across the Channel.Ten kilometres from the French coast,his plane had some trouble.It fell down into the water and began to sink under the water.A boat reached Latham just in time.He was sitting calmly on the wing and was coolly lighting a cigarette.Bleriot took off six days later.He flew into some very bad weather and very low cloud.He somehow got to the English side and landed in a farmer's field.When he did so,a customs(海关)officer rushed up to his plane.Planes have changed since then,but customs officers have not.Have you anything to declare?The officer demanded.

I03 In capsule hotels,each guest stays in a small sleeping space called capsule.It measures about 2 meters in length and 1 meter in both width and height.

It is a type of hotel first developed in Japan intended to provide cheap,basic overnight accommodation for guests who do not require the services offered by traditional hotels.Facilities differ,but most include a television and wireless internet connection.There are many buttons in the capsule.One turns on the light,one turns on the TV,one controls the channels.There is a radio and an alarm clock builtin.The open end of the capsule can be closed,for privacy,with a curtain or a fibreglass door.Luggage is stored in a locker.Clothes and shoes are sometimes exchanged for a yukata and slippers on entry.Washrooms are communal.Guests are asked not to smoke or eat in the capsules.Some hotels also provide restaurants (or at least vending machines),pools,and other entertainment facilities.Capsules are used primarily by men.Some capsule hotels offer separate sections for male and female guests.

The benefits of these hotels are convenience and price, usually around 2000-4000(USD 25-50) a night. They provide a place for those who maybe too drunk to return home safely. About 30% at the Capsule Hotel were unemployed or underemployed and were renting capsules by the month. M01 Man is a land animal, but he is also closely tied to the sea. Throughout history the sea has served the needs of man. The sea has provided man with food and a convenient way to travel to many parts of the world. Today, nearly two-thirds of the world's population live within 80 kilometers of the sea coast.

In the modern technological world, the sea offers many resources to help mankind survive. Resources on land are beginning to be used up. The sea, however, still can be hoped to supply many of man's needs.

The list of riches of the sea yet to be developed by man's technology is impressive. Oil and gas explorations have been carried out for nearly 30 years.Valuable amounts of minerals exist on the ocean floor ready to be mined (开采).

Fish farming promises to be a good way to produce large quantities of food.The culture of fish and shellfish is an ancient skill practiced in the past mainly by Oriental people.

Besides oil and gas,the sea may offer new sources of energy.Experts believe that the warm temperature of the ocean can be used in a way similar to the steam in a steamship.Ocean currents (水流) and waves offer possible use as a source of energy.

Technology is enabling man to explore ever more deeply under the sea.The development of strong,new materials has made this possible.

The technology to harvest the sea continues to improve.Experts believe that by the year 2000 the problems that prevent us from exploiting fully the food,minerals,and energy sources of the sea will be largely solved.

At the Royal Albert Hall in London, television presenter Kirsty Gallacher led a team of 60 cyclists from the UK-World Wildlife Fund. They aimed to appeal for the public to pay attention to endangered species including dolphins and tigers. Colin Butfield, head of campaigns, WWF-UK, said: "Our event at the Royal Albert Hall, alongside the hundreds of thousands of events across the world, shows global support for the need to tackle climate change and protect the natural world. The challenge for our future wellbeing could not be greater. WWF's Earth Hour is about to create a message so powerful that governments and individuals can not fail to take notice."

Earth Hour started in 2007 in Sydney, Australia, when 2.2 million individuals and more than 2,000 businesses turned their lights off for one hour to take a stand against climate change. The following year, Earth Hour had become a global sustainability movement with more than 50 million people across 35 countries participating. Four of the world's five tallest buildings turned off their lights with the tallest, the 828-metre Burj Khalifa in Dubai, switching off about half a million lights. ## A02 AMPHIBIOUS ARCHITECTURE: FLOOD-PROOF HOME DESIGNS

Instead of trying to beat back the rising flood, innovative amphibious buildings can adapt to the rising flood. These buildings are ready for whatever Mother Nature might throw at them—even 10-foot floodwaters. Let's take a look at just two of them.

THE UK'S FIRST AMPHIBIOUS HOUSE

The UK's first amphibious house is located on the Thames River. And the first amphibious building in Britain will be completed soon. Baca Architects designed this home for a couple who wanted to live on a flood-prone island, an island easy to be attacked by floods, in the Thames River. This building is equipped with a terraced landscape. And this terraced landscape acts as an early warning system when the waters are rising. The terraces will be filled with water before the 'wet dock' under the house does, and then the home itself will slowly rise to stay above the water.

SOLAR POWERED FLOATING SCHOOL IN NIGERIA

Residents of Makoko in Nigeria have been building houses on stilts for generations. People there go from one house to another by canoe. As sea levels are rising, officials threaten to tear down the entire community. If these houses are tore down, 250,000 people will be homeless and have to look for a new place to live. Architects found a solution in floating structures with improved sanitation conditions. The first completed example is a three-storey solar-powered school.

This amazing floating school addresses social, physical and ecological needs. Built on top of 256 recycled blue barrels, the school buildings are made of triangular bamboo and wood. Makoko's residents made full use of their skills when building these structures. With three levels, the solar-powered high school has room for 100 local kids and recycles rainwater to flush the toilets. And the cost for the whole school structures was under $7,000.

However, because of California state law, a real person needs to be in the car and ready to take over in an emergency. The goal is to finally remove any controls inside the car. Companies also need to work with governments on legislation to allow driverless cars on all roads.

I01 It is amazing to note that the Internet is still such a new device,and yet it is one of the fastest and most powerful media tools.But think about it for a moment.On the Internet,a big online company can be run by only two guys in their garage.So it is only reasonable then,that people shopping online would be a little leery of the security levels.

Internet giants such as Microsoft knew consumer confidence was the key to getting virtual(虚拟的)shopping off the ground,and they work hard to make people feel safe to shop online.

Credit card companies,too,quickly saw the potential for online shopping,and have installed things like online shopping insurance for people.If you ever have a problem with your online credit purchases,many credit card companies will happily refund(退还)your money and then set their claws on the company that wronged you.Now that's buying power!

There are other bonuses for online shoppers,of course.No line&.shy;ups,for one.No annoying mall shopping carts with broken wheels and kids crying because their parents won't get them what they want.

When shopping online, consumers can sit down, have a coffee, and wear their slippers, not having to worry about their hair or parking, and just clicking through sale after sale. Comparison shopping couldn't be any easier. And thanks to courier companies (快递公司) getting in on the act, you never need to wait longer than a day or two to get those all important purchases delivered right to your door.

No wonder so many companies are shaking their heads at traditional retailing and instead looking to the “virtual” world to attract online shoppers.

T01 The fridge is considered necessary. It has been so since the 1960s when packaged food list appeared with the label: Store in the refrigerator.

In my fridge less Fifties childhood, I was fed well and healthy. The milkman came every day, the grocer, the butcher (肉商), the baker, and the ice-cream man delivered two or three times each week. The Sunday meat would last until Wednesday and surplus (剩余的) bread and milk became all kinds of cakes. Nothing was wasted, and we were never troubled by rotten food. Thirty years on food deliveries have ceased, fresh vegetables are almost unobtainable in the country.

The invention of the fridge contributed comparatively little to the art of food preservation. Many well-tried techniques already existed—natural cooling, drying, smoking, salting, sugaring, bottling...

What refrigeration did promote was marketing—marketing hardware and electricity, marketing soft drinks, marketing dead bodies of animals around the world in search of a good price.

Consequently, most of the world's fridges are to be found, not in the tropics where they might prove useful, but in the rich countries with mild temperatures where they are climatically almost unnecessary. Every winter, millions of fridges hum away continuously, and at vast expense, busily maintaining an artificially-cooled space inside an artificially-heated house—while outside, nature provides the desired temperature free of charge.

The fridge's effect upon the environment has been evident, while its contribution to human happiness has been not important.

1. The statement In my fridge less fifties childhood, I was fed well and healthily, suggests that the author was well-fed and healthy even without a fridge in his fifties. [答案] F

2. The author says that nothing was wasted before the invention of fridges because people had effective ways to preserve food. [答案] T

3. Consumers benefited the most from fridges according to the author? [答案] F

With more and more cars coming into our families, we are happy that it has greatly improved our life. But unluckily, it has also brought many problems, such as heavy traffic and traffic accidents.

Traffic safety is everybody's business. We must obey the rules. For example, we must walk on walk side, when we cross zebra-crossing, stop and look right and left, then go across fast. Don't play football on the road. We can tell our parents not to drink before they drive, not to run through red lights, not to talk and laugh while driving etc.

We can say cars are coming into our life, but only when everybody thinks traffic safety is everybody's business can we be safe driving on roads and walking on sidewalks.
