第三大题 阅读选择题

A01 A team of about 35 employees had come together for a team building event.They were a young,bright and enthusiastic team.However,one of their chief problems was the fact that they wouldn't share information or solutions with each other,and the team leader thought they were too focused on themselves and not on the team.As a result,she brought them all into the cafeteria.All of the tables and chairs had been stored away,and fun decorations and hundreds of different colored balloons had been placed around the room.

In the center of the room was a big box of balloons that hadn't been blown up yet.The team leader instructed everybody to pick a balloon,blow it up,and write their name on it,but they had to be careful not to burst the balloon.

Although they were given a second chance if their first balloon popped,they were out of the game the second time round.In the end,about 30 team members wrote their names without their balloons popping.They were then asked to leave the room and,after five minutes,the team leader brought them back in and asked them to find the balloon with their name on it amongst the hundreds of other balloons in the room.After 15 minutes of searching,no one had found their balloon,and the team were told that they were then going to move on to the third round of the activity.

In this round,each team member was instructed to find any balloon with a name on it and then give that balloon to the person whose name was on it.Within two minutes,everybody had their own balloon.The team leader summarized the activity thus: “We are much more efficient when we are willing to share with each other and much better at problem solving when we are working together,not individually.”

Sometimes,members of teams create obstacles by focusing solely on their own pursuits and goals.Every member of the team should ask themselves on a regular basis what they are doing and what they can do for the team.

1.This team building event was aimed at_____.

- A.helping these young,bright and enthusiastic employees become more concentrated on their work
- B.making the team members know how to share information or solutions and cooperate with each other
- C.building up team morale

[答案]B

2.This event was held in_____.

- A.a self-service restaurant
- B.a coffee shop
- C.a classroom

[答案]A

3.About how many team members were out of the second round of the activity?

- A.30.
- B.35.
- C.5.

[答案]C

4.Which statement below is correct?

- A.In the second round,every one of the team had found their balloons after 15 minutes.
- B.In the third round,the team members were asked them to find the balloon with their name on it amongst the hundreds of other balloons in the room.
- C.In the third round,everybody had their own balloon with help from others within 2 minutes.

[答案]C

5.What was the event going to teach these employees?

- A.Sharing and cooperating with other team members is more efficient when they are working together.
- B.Focusing solely on employees’ own pursuits is not allowed in workplace.
- C.Failure of teamwork is caused by individual.

G01 HOW TO HANDLE A BAD PERFORMANCE REVIEW

Getting a bad performance review can make you feel angry,unappreciated,defeated,and hopeless.But it’s not the end of the world.Remember that the way you respond to this appraisal can make all the difference in the next one.Even if you believe that the review is inaccurate and that your boss is completely wrong,you will benefit by reacting in a mature,adult manner.Here are some suggestions:

Stay calm.Relax.Breathe.Do not overreact and be objective.Especially,do not say things that will likely be regretted later.Besides,the person giving the performance review may or may not be the one who has written the bad review.

WHAT TO DO WHEN RECEIVING A BAD PERFORMANCE REVIEW

It’s best to listen attentively.And make comments or remarks only when asked for them.Besides,during the performance review,you will be given the chance to respond and may disagree.

WHAT TO DO AFTER RECEIVING A BAD PERFORMANCE REVIEW

Don't be intimidated by the bad performance review and want to quit the job; instead, learn from it. Also, if the organization allows their employees to make a written statement on their own behalf, do make one. It is important for the worker to show why she does not agree with the bad performance review; for instance, an employee may express their different understanding and, at the same time, a willingness to comply with any constructive suggestions.

WAYS TO IMPROVE A BAD PERFORMANCE REVIEW

A way to improve a bad performance review is to set self-reviews, that is, establish performance standards. Another way to improve a bad review is to learn more about what the manager, supervisor, or boss wants or expects from his/her employees. Learning what it was that caused a bad performance review helps to improve professional growth and encourages as well as motivates the worker to do better in order to receive a good review next time.

1. What should you do when you are given a bad performance review?

A. Argue with your boss.

B. Make immediate remarks.

C. Stay calm and listen carefully.

[答案]C

2. What should you do after you are given a bad performance review?

A. Quit your job immediately.

B. Insist on making comments.

C. Learn from the review.

[答案]C

3. What should you do if you do not agree with the bad performance review?

A. Tell the boss directly that you do not agree with the review.

B. Make a written statement on your own behalf if it is allowed.

C. Do not express your different understanding in a written statement.

[答案]B

4. How do you improve a bad performance review?

A. Understand the established performance standards.

B. Learn more about what the employee wants or expects.

C. Learn what the person who gives the review may think.

[答案]A

5. Why should we understand the cause of a bad performance review?

A. Because it helps the employee to get promoted immediately.

B. Because it encourages and motivates the worker to do better.

C. Because it prevents the employee from professional growth.

H01 Have you noticed the courage buried in the word encourage? To create a culture in which innovation flourishes takes courage. Determined innovators are always courageous enough to establish a culture in which innovation is greatly encouraged and rewarded. Here are three ways to do that.

Put innovation at the heart of strategy, and persist it in every message. Think of innovation strategy as a pyramid: big bets at the top, a few projects in development in the middle, and a broad base of continuous improvements, lasting contributions, and early-stage new ideas at the bottom.

Define jobs around innovation. Make it a job prerequisite. Consider 3M's move to become one of the first companies to tell professionals that they could spend 15 percent of their time on projects of their own choosing. Now many high-tech companies know that they can't get the best talent without providing this kind of flexibility. And some of those self-selected, self-organized projects might even result in a blockbuster product or line of business. For 3M, it was the Post-it note.

Recognize innovation in every part of the company.To build a culture of creativity and innovation,Gillette developed an innovation fair in which every unit could show off its most promising new concepts.It shows that everyone has a role to play in a culture of innovation.

To go from idea to successful innovation requires a great deal of support and collaboration.When people are surrounded by constant communication and encouragement,they can find the courage to try,fail,redo,and try again.

21.What is necessary in creating an innovation culture?

A.Communication.

B.Courage.

C.Imitation.

[答案]B

22.How does 3M create its innovation culture?

A.Put innovation at the heart of strategy,and persist it in every message.

B.Define jobs around innovation.

C.Recognize innovation in every part of the company.

[答案]B

23.The word prerequisite in“Make it a job prerequisite”means_____.

A.required as a prior condition

B.going after

C.prior to request

[答案]A

24.The formation from idea to innovation needs_____.

A.discussion and revision

B.failure and courage

C.support and cooperation

[答案]C

25.Which is NOT mentioned in the creation of innovation?

A.Put innovation in the extremely key place of the strategy.

B.Develop innovation in every part of the company.

C.Put innovation into effect.

H02 HOW GOOGLE CONTINUES TO KEEP EMPLOYEES HAPPY

Working for Google is a dream of many,not just because of what this company has achieved in the last 15 years,but because of its enviable work culture.With about 37,000 employees in 40 countries,you might wonder how Google maintains a motivating work experience throughout its entire company.

Working for Google comes with perks that most other organizations can't provide-bowling alleys,free haircuts,gym memberships,and shuttles to and from work.The company's secret to success is putting the same amount of time and effort into keeping employees happy as it does into innovating products.

Back when the company was just a start-up,co-founders Larry Page and Sergey Brin had the goal of making Google a place the most talented people wanted to work at.Their idea was simple:creating a work culture that keeps employees happy will motivate them to do their best and will keep them loyal to the company.

It's less about the aspiration to be No.1 in the world,and more that we want our employees and future ones to love it here,because that's what's going to make us successful,said Karen May,the Vice President of people development at Google.

Google also makes its employees want to work because managers provide tasks that are inspiring and challenging.Every employee at Google has the opportunity to spend 20% of his or her working time on a project they choose. This freedom takes employees out of their routine and away from the mundane tasks that often make workers feel uninspired about their jobs.

Lastly, Google shows each employee just how important he or she is to the company. Each employee, regardless of her spot on the totem pole, has an influence on how Google performs.

If you value people, and care about them as whole people, one thing you do is giving them a voice, and you really listen, May said.

Google does just that by hosting employee forums every Friday, where they discuss the 20 most-asked questions. Employees have access to all company information, adding a sense of trust, and employees and leaders work together to solve problems.

1. How would you describe Google?

A. Medium-sized international company

B. Large global enterprises

C. Large American company

[答案]B

2. Which one does NOT belong to the methods that Google motivate its employees?

A. Promoting the employee who has more influence on Google the higher job position.

B. Shuttling the employees between home and office.

C. Offering entertaining equipment in workplace.

[答案]A

3. Who founded Google?

A. Larry Page and Sergey Brin

B. Karen May

C. Sergey Brin

[答案]A

4. If you are a normal employee of Google, what could you do EXCEPT?

A. Know all information of Google and discuss questions with your leaders.

B. Only work for the project you choose.

C. Play bowling with your colleagues and get away from mundane errands.

[答案]B

5. What is Google's secret to success?

A. Innovating hi-tech products.

B. Paying high salary to the employees and practicing strict management.

C. Valuing the happiness of its employees as much as innovating good products.

I01 If there's one word that captures the essence of what is occurring in the world today, it's "change." Downsizing, reorganizing, and cutting costs, are now the norm for survival. No industry is exempt. Even the most conservative institutions are undergoing significant change just to survive.

Change management has always been an issue of debate amongst scholars: how can employers create suitable conditions for a successful change process? And what can employees do to get through it?

Tips for dealing with change in the workplace.

- Make yourself aware that change happens: it happens in personal life, it happens in your professional life. You can not live in the past, so denying that change could occur only makes things more complicated for you.

●Stay alert in the workplace:know what is happening around you.When you come across clues that hint change is on the way,acknowledge them!

●Maintain open communication channels:Don't lay back and expect things to pass you by smoothly.You need to get acquainted with the occurring changes.Seek more details from your management and peers to for man accurate understanding of the matter.Be transparent and honest about your fears:dealing with the unknown is often resented and daunting.Make the picture as clear as you can.

●Assess yourself!Change is a time when one's confidence about one's skills and capabilities gets shaky.Recognize your strengths and where you could bring them into play.At the same time,stay aware of your developmental areas and work on improving those.

●Don't be stiff:It will make the change process much harder if you are rigid.Be flexible enough to look at the different angles of the change and see where you could apply your "existing"skills and knowledge,and what news skills you need to acquire.

●Stay optimistic:Keep a positive attitude and don't let yourself drown in uncertainty.Involve yourself in the new process;locate yourself properly in the new scenario.Adjust!"You can't get to the top of Everest by jumping up the mountain.You get to the mountaintop by taking incremental steps.Step by step,you get to the goal",says Robin Sharma,one of the world's most-sought-after leadership and personal success experts.

I03 In 1916,a French coalmine director named Henri Fayol wrote a book entitled Administration

Industrielle et Generale, which set forth five distinct functions of managing that Fayol insisted were applicable in any industry. In the 1950's, management textbooks began to incorporate some of a Fayol's ideas into their content, and today, management courses still use many of his ideas to teach management to business students.

Planning

Planning involves deciding where to take a company and selecting steps to get there. It first requires managers to be aware of challenges facing their businesses, and then it requires managers to forecast future business and economic conditions. They then formulate objectives to reach by certain deadlines and decide on steps to reach them. They re-evaluate their plans as conditions change and make adjustments as necessary.

Organizing

Managers organize by bringing together physical, human and financial resources to achieve objectives. They identify activities to be accomplished, classify activities, assign activities to groups or individuals, create responsibilities and delegate authority. They then coordinate everything so operations run smoothly.

Leading

Leading requires managers to motivate employees to achieve business objectives and goals. It requires the use of authority to achieve those ends as well as the ability to communicate effectively. Effective leaders can influence their personnel to view situations from their perspectives. Leading also involves supervision of employees and their work.

Controlling

Controlling involves measuring achievement against established objectives and goals. It also requires managers to be able to identify sources of deviation from successful accomplishment and to provide a corrective course of action. Managers first establish objectives and goals, then measure achievements, identify anything that is keeping the company from achieving their objectives and goals, and provide means of correction if necessary.

Staffing

Without human resources, no organization can get off the ground, let alone do business and make profits. Some distinct features of the staffing function are:

- It puts the right man in the right job.
- It is an ongoing activity as employees keep leaving and joining the company, they also retire from time to time leaving empty places in various positions.
- Efficiency is a prime focus of this function as managing people is the toughest job there is, everything must be accounted for, leaves, payments, benefits, medical allowances, social security accounting and much more.

21. What is the main idea of this passage?

- A. To introduce some of the author's ideas about management.
- B. To introduce five distinct functions of managing proposed by Fayol.
- C. To promote the book entitled Administration Industrielle et Generale.

[答案]B

22. What are the influence of Fayol's book Administration Industrielle et Generale?

- A. It is of no influence at all for today.
- B. It is nearly forgotten by the world.
- C. It is still great effect on current management courses.

[答案]C

23.Which step of managing refers to bring staff together and tell them what to do?

T01 The meaning of“communication”goes a lot deeper than people often think.Communication is about conceiving,sending,receiving,and interpreting messages as well as confirming reception of these messages.A failure at any point in this chain can result in ineffective communication.

Ineffective communication can be disastrous.There is a famous story of a British Army Commander who sent the message“Send reinforcements,we’re going to advance.”back to his Command Center,through along chain of subordinates.When the message finally reached the Command Center,it had“mutated”to become“Send three and four-pence,we’re going to a dance.”The reinforcements never arrived.

You can demonstrate this same principle,albeit on a less dramatic scale,by trying to play Chinese Whispers with more than 20 people.It is highly unlikely the same message you started with will be the one you end with.

In a business,there are three main types of communication failure.Each has its own indicative signs.

- The first type is known as allocative failure.This occurs when a firm is not gathering enough intelligence about its market or(most often) ,the information is not reaching the right points.The firm will not be allocating resources in step with the shifts in demand.If demand is rising but the firm is suffering from allocative communication failure,then stocks will fall and there will be under staffing.If the inverse happens,there will be a surplus of stocks and over staffing.

- The second type is executive failure,where communication to trigger specific events/actions is either late,lacking or in error.The symptoms of this area general loss of direction in the company or departments,a loss of co-ordination and an increase in complaints from customers as things happen late or not at all.

- The final type is human failure.This occurs when the general culture of a business or the relationships between particular individuals or departments do not foster effective communication.This leads to alienated staff,an increase in staff turnover,an increase in absenteeism and general frustration among staff.Creativity,especially that which takes place across departmental boundaries,is likely to suffer hugely as team synergy slips.

W01 HOW GOOGLE CONTINUES TO KEEP EMPLOYEES HAPPY

Working for Google is a dream of many,not just because of what this company has achieved in the last 15 years,but because of its enviable work culture.With about 37,000 employees in 40 countries,you might wonder how Google maintains a motivating work experience throughout its entire company.

Working for Google comes with perks that most other organizations can't provide-bowling alleys,free haircuts,gym memberships,and shuttles to and from work.The company's secret to success is putting the same amount of time and effort into keeping employees happy as it does into innovating products.

Back when the company was just a start-up,co-founders Larry Page and Sergey Brin had the goal of making Google a place the most talented people wanted to work at.Their idea was simple:creating a work culture that keeps employees happy will motivate them to do their best and will keep them loyal to the company.

It's less about the aspiration to be No.1 in the world,and more that we want our employees and future ones to love it here,because that's what's going to make us successful,said Karen May,the Vice President of people development at Google.

Google also makes its employees want to work because managers provide tasks that are inspiring and challenging.Every employee at Google has the opportunity to spend 20% of his or her working time on a project they choose.This freedom takes employees out of their routine and away from the mundane tasks that often make workers feel uninspired about their jobs.

Lastly,Google shows each employee just how important he or she is to the company.Each employee,regardless of her spot on the totem pole,has an influence on how Google performs.

If you value people,and care about them as whole people,one thing you do is giving them a voice,and you really listen,May said.

Google does just that by hosting employee forums every Friday,where they discuss the 20 most-asked questions.Employees have access to all company information,adding a sense of trust,and employees and leaders work together to solve problems.

- 1.How would you describe Google?
A.Medium-sized international company
B.Large global enterprises
C.Large American company

[答案]B

- 2.Which one does NOT belong to the methods that Google motivate its employees?
A.Promoting the employee who has more influence on Google the higher job position.
B.Shuttling the employees between home and office.
C.Offering entertaining equipment in workplace.

[答案]A

- 3.Who founded Google?
A.Larry Page and Sergey Brin
B.Karen May
C.Sergey Brin

[答案]A

- 4.If you are a normal employee of Google,what could you do EXCEPT?
A.Know all information of Google and discuss questions with your leaders.
B.Only work for the project you choose.
C.Play bowling with your colleagues and get away from mundane errands.

[答案]B

- 5.What is Google's secret to success?
A.Innovating hi-tech products.
B.Paying high salary to the employees and practicing strict management.
C.Valuing the happiness of its employees as much as innovating good products.

VISION AND EXECUTION:TWO SIDES OF A SUCCESSFUL STRATEGY

A strategic plan is not the end goal of the strategic planning process-it is the framework for successfully implementing a strategy.Until a strategic plan is put into effect,it has no real value.

There are several keys to successful implementation.First,people directly involved in executing the strategy must be included in the planning process.Strategic planning is no longer a top-down directive.Without the input and feedback of the people responsible for executing on the strategy,a seemingly solid strategy is likely to fall apart when implementation is attempted.

The next key to successful implementation is clearly communicating the strategy to the whole company.The communication should ensure that everyone in the company understands and accepts the strategy as the best path forward,and not simply the leadership's latest idea.Without clear communication,employees lack a sense of ownership and clarity of purpose.When a strategy is not understood or embraced,it usually results in misunderstanding and uneven commitments to implementation.

Another key to the successful execution of a strategic plan is the clear and straightforward description of the plan and its operations.Even the most brilliant strategy faces failure if it cannot be explained clearly and concisely.

C01 CREATE A POSITIVE WORKPLACE CULTURE

In competitive markets,leaders are under increased pressure to maintain a positive work culture.A positive work culture cultivates greater employee satisfaction;greater employee satisfaction contributes to higher performance;higher performance impacts improved client outcomes;improved client outcomes contribute to service excellence.

Positive work cultures are built over time and need constant attention.Such cultures are dependent on leadership vision and values.

An effective leader sets the tone for the team,encourages a positive workplace culture and is able to bring about cultural change.

Workplace culture is made up of the shared attitudes,beliefs,behaviors,values and expectations that influence the way people work in the workplace.It is the way we do things around here.

Some cultural aspects are understood by all and are obvious such as turning up for work on time,while others may be unwritten rules that are not so obvious for example how personal issues are resolved with work colleagues.

Many factors that influence whether a workplace has a positive outlook are within the control of people who work in a workplace.There are also factors out of their control,such as slumps in global prices or a change in demand and supply.The company can,however,control how they respond to these factors.

Those companies that do create positive workplace environments develop a reputation in their community as being 'good to work for' and have a competitive edge.Not only are these companies more able to attract and retain people,they tend to be more stable as they proactively deal with issues and adapt to change.

Teams work best when they are clear about what is expected of them.They are more able to deal with difficult issues if they feel the values of the organization are supportive of them.

For a workplace culture to be positive,the direction and actions of the business must be consistent with the core values of the people in the workplace.The people must trust each other and be able to openly express and exchange ideas.

Working through these steps will help with developing a positive business culture.

1.A positive work culture will give workers more satisfaction.[答案]T

2.Positive cultures have a lot to do with leadership vision and values.[答案]T

3.The direction and actions for the business must differ from the core values of the employees in order for a workplace culture to be positive.[答案]F

4.In competitive markets,leaders are under more and more pressure to keep a positive work culture.[答案]T

5.Positive work culture can be built in a short period of time.[答案]F

H01 HABITS OF HIGHLY EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATORS

It's no secret that good leaders are also good communicators.Indeed,communication and leadership are inextricably tied.How can you galvanize,inspire or guide others if you don't communicate in a clear,credible and authentic way?Here are 5essential communication practices of effective leaders:

1.Mind the say-do gap.Trust is the bedrock of effective leadership-your behavior is your single greatest mode of communication,and it must be congruent with what you say.If your actions don't align with your words,you a restoring up trouble for the future.

2.Make the complex simple.Effective leaders distill complex thoughts and strategies into simple,memorable terms that colleagues and customers can grasp and act upon.The most important thing is to clarify what you want to say,lookout for technical jargon and avoid business speak,which add complexity.Say what you mean in as few words as possible.

3.Find your own voice.Use language that's distinctly your own;let your values come through in your communication.Correct use of language and grammar are important,of course,but don't become overly fixated on eloquence for eloquence's sake;concentrate on being distinct and real.People want real,people respect real,people follow real.

4.Be visible.Visibility is about letting your key stakeholders get a feel for who you are and what you care about.Don't hide behind a computer and only interact with people electronically-see them face to face and voice to voice,and interact with them in a real,substantial way.In today's environment,where people are often burned out,it's important for employees to have a personal connection with you and the work you believe in.Show the people that work for you that you're engaged and that you care about them and their work.

5.Listen with your eyes as well as your ears.Effective communication is a two-way process,and good leaders know how to ask good questions,and then listen with both their eyes and their ears.Because you are in a position of authority,others maybe reluctant to express their real opinions to you directly.You won't always get direct feedback,so you need to also be able to read between the lines and look for the non-verbal cues.

26.Communication and leadership don't always go hand in hand.[答案]F

27.The say-do gap happens when people misunderstand their leader's intention.[答案]F

28.Using technical jargon makes a leader convincing.[答案]F

29.Communicating sincerely is always the best.[答案]T

THE RIGHT WAY TO MOTIVATE EMPLOYEES

It's important for a CEO to be passionate and enthusiastic, but there's a line of professionalism that must always be maintained.

According to a report from the technology website Venture Beat, PayPal CEO David Marcus wrote a critical letter to his employees blaming them for not using PayPal products and encouraging them to leave if they didn't have the passion to use the products they work for.

According to the website, part of the leaked letter reads:

It's been brought to my attention that when testing paying with mobile at Cafe 17 last week, some of you refused to install the PayPal app, and others didn't even remember their PayPal passwords. That's unacceptable to me, and the rest of my team, everyone at PayPal should use our products where available. That's the only way we can make them better, and better.

In closing, if you are one of the folks who refused to install the PayPal app or if you can't remember your PayPal password, do yourself a favor, go and find something that will connect with your heart and mind elsewhere.

While not obvious at first, the letter reveals a problem of morale and culture at PayPal. As an executive, you certainly want your employees to use and promote your products. However, when faced with a situation where staff isn't embracing what they make, you need to investigate the root of the problem—not threaten.

When faced with internal problems, good executives start by asking why. They reach out to their executive team first and then to the entire staff to find the root of a problem and how to fix it. Sending out a one-sided note about the problem is not leading, it's retreating.

Leadership starts by listening. Good executives need to get out among the staff and ask questions and listen without judgment or reaction. The fact that company employees are not embracing and using its products is a failure of leadership that Marcus needs to address by self-reflection. At the end of the day, if his employees have to be forced to use the app, how can he expect consumers to want to willingly pay to use it? Marcus should have focused on three questions:

Why are you not using the app?

What is it that we can do to ensure you use our app?

What do you need from me?

1. A CEO only needs to be passionate and enthusiastic. [答案]F

2. It is not professional that PayPal CEO blames his employees not to use PayPal or forget PayPal passwords. [答案]T

N01 Nokia executives attempted to explain its fall from the top of the smart phone pyramid with three factors: (1) that Nokia was technically inferior to Apple; (2) that the company was complacent and; (3) that its leaders didn't see the disruptive iPhone coming.

It has also been argued that it was none of the above. Nokia lost the smart phone battle because of divergent shared fears among the company's middle and top managers which led to company-wide inertia that left it powerless to respond to Apple's game.

Based on the findings of an in-depth investigation and 76 interviews with top and middle managers, engineers and external experts, the researchers discovered a culture of fear due to temperamental leaders and that frightened middle managers were scared of telling the truth.

The fear that froze the company came from two places. First, the company's top managers had a terrifying reputation. Some members of Nokia's board and top management were described as "extremely temperamental" and they regularly shouted at people "at the top of their lungs". It was very difficult to tell them things they didn't want to hear. Secondly, top managers were afraid of the external environment and not meeting their quarterly targets, which also impacted how they treated middle managers.

Top managers thus made middle managers afraid of disappointing them. Middle managers were told that they were not ambitious enough to meet top managers' goals.

Fearing the reactions of top managers, middle managers remained silent or provided optimistic, filtered information. Thus, middle managers directly lied to top management.

Worse, a culture of status inside Nokia made everyone want to hold onto vested power for fear of resources being allocated elsewhere if they delivered bad news or showed that they were not bold or ambitious enough to undertake challenging assignments.

Beyond verbal pressure, top managers also applied pressure for faster performance in personnel selection. This led middle managers to over promise and under deliver. One middle manager told us that "you can get resources by promising something earlier, or promising a lot. It's sales work."

While modest fear might be healthy for motivation, abusing it can be like overusing a drug, which risks generating harmful side effects. To reduce this risk, leaders should coordinate with the varied emotions of the staff. Nokia's top managers should have encouraged safe dialogue, internal coordination and feedback to understand the true emotion in the organization.

26. Nokia lost the smart phone battle because its technology is not as good as that of Apple. [答案]F

27. Nokia's middle managers were frank to tell the truth, but the top ones didn't listen to them. [答案]F

28. Nokia's top managers were too moody to hear anything good but harsh. [答案]T

29. Middle managers in Nokia delivered results more than they promised earlier. [答案]F

30. Nokia's top managers should have had better conversation techniques to encourage internal coordination and truth. [答案]T

P01 Performance management aims to acknowledge employee achievements, support their personal and professional development, and motivate and empower them to perform their work effectively. Performance management helps employees to develop their understanding, knowledge and skills so that they can contribute to the achievement of the enterprise's goals and gain personal and job satisfaction. It is a vital part of any quality human resource system.

Every enterprise wants and should expect high performance from each employee. The elements of a competency-based performance management system will, if implemented well, enable high performance which will define enterprise and personal success. Using performance management processes, an enterprise can be better placed to meet competitive challenges. This is done by:

- identifying the critical positions
- determining the most important competencies for those positions

- providing the education,training and feedback required by employees
- holding each person accountable for their results

The key to the performance management process is ‘performance appraisal’.Performance appraisal is simply an evaluation of how well an employee performs his or her job compared to a set of predetermined standards.It is a systematic process of feedback on an employee's work performance,and agreement to future training plans,job goals and job aspirations.

To be effective,a performance appraisal needs to have a set of agreed criteria that will be the basis of feedback as well as of setting future goals.Units of competency provide a very effective tool for setting benchmarks or criteria for work performance.The performance criteria within units of competency can be used as measures to assess against in a performance appraisal or review.

- 1.Performance management is a very important part of any quality human resource system.[答案]T
- 2.The aim of performance management is to punish the unqualified employees.[答案]F
- 3.An enterprise can be better placed to meet competitive challenges by providing the education,training and feedback required by employees,for example.[答案]T
- 4.Every enterprise can expect high performance from each employee.[答案]F
- 5.Performance management is also called performance appraisal.[答案]F

T01 TIPS FOR TEAM BUILDING

When you think of team building,do you immediately picture your group off at a resort playing games or hanging from ropes?Traditionally,many organizations approach team building in this way but,then,they wonder why that wonderful sense of teamwork that has been displayed at the retreat or the seminar fails to impact long-term beliefs and actions back at work.

I’m not averse to retreats,planning sessions,seminars and team building activities-in fact I lead them-but they have to form part of a much larger teamwork effort.You will not build teamwork by“retreating”as a group for a couple of days each year,instead you need to think of team building as something you do every single day.

Form teams to solve real work issues and to improve real work processes.Provide training in systematic methods so the team expends its energy on the project,not on trying to workout how to work together as a team to approach the problem.

Hold department meetings to review projects and progress,to obtain broad input,and to coordinate shared work processes.If there is friction between team members,examine the work processes they mutually own-the problem is not usually their personalities; instead,it is often the fact that the team members haven't agreed on how they will deliver a product or service,or the steps required to get something done.

- Build fun and shared occasions into the organization’s agenda-hold potluck lunches,take the team to a sporting event,sponsor dinner sat a local restaurant,go hiking or go to an amusement park.Hold a monthly company meeting,sponsor sports teams and encourage cheering team fans.

- Use icebreakers and teamwork exercises at meetings-these help team members get to know each other,share details about each other’s lives,and have a laugh together.

- Celebrate team successes publicly.There are many ways you could do this,for instance by buying everyone the same T-shirt or hat,putting team member names in a draw for company merchandise and gift certificates.The only thing limiting you is your imagination.

If you do the types of teamwork building listed above,you’ll be amazed at the progress you will make in creating a teamwork culture,a culture that enables individuals to contribute more than they ever thought possible-together.

W01 When Jack Welch,the Chairman and CEO at General Electric(GE) retired in 2001,he could look back at a very successful career.He became CEO in 1981 at the age of 45.At that time,GE had a very complex organizational structure with considerably bureaucratic rules.

One of his first changes was to initiate a strategy formulation process with the guideline that each of the businesses should be number 1 or 2 in the respective areas.If this was not the case,managers had the options of fixing the problem,selling their particular business,or closing it.In an effort to streamline the organization,Welch removed the sector level and eliminated thousands of salaried and hourly employee positions.

The restructuring was followed by changing the organizational culture and the managerial styles of GE's managers.One such program was the Work-Out(群策群力).Groups of managers were assembled to share their views openly in three-day sessions.At the beginning of the meetings,the superior presented the challenges for his or her organizational unit.Then the superior had to leave,requesting the groups to find solutions to the problems.Facilitators(会议主持人) helped these discussions.On the last day,the superior was presented with proposed solutions.He or she then had three choices:to accept the proposal,not to accept it,or to collect more information.This process put great pressure on the superior to make decisions.

Another program to improve effectiveness and efficiency was Best Practices.The aim was to learn from other companies how they obtained customer satisfaction,how they related to their suppliers,and in what ways they developed new products.This helped the GE people to focus on the processes in their operations that would improve the company's performance.

Jack Welch was personally involved in developing managers at GE's training center in Crotonville.Leaders,Welch suggested,are not only those who achieve results but also those who share the values of the company.

Form teams to solve real work issues and to improve real work processes. Provide training in systematic methods so the team expends its energy on the project, not on trying to work out how to work together as a team to approach the problem.

Hold department meetings to review projects and progress, to obtain broad input, and to coordinate shared work processes. If there is friction between team members, examine the work processes they mutually own—the problem is not usually their personalities; instead, it is often the fact that the team members haven't agreed on how they will deliver a product or service, or the steps required to get something done.

- Build fun and shared occasions into the organization's agenda—hold potluck lunches, take the team to a sporting event, sponsor dinner at a local restaurant, go hiking or go to an amusement park. Hold a monthly company meeting, sponsor sports teams and encourage cheering team fans.

- Use icebreakers and teamwork exercises at meetings—these help team members get to know each other, share details about each other's lives, and have a laugh together.

- Celebrate team successes publicly. There are many ways you could do this, for instance by buying everyone the same T-shirt or hat, putting team member names in a draw for company merchandise and gift certificates. The only thing limiting you is your imagination.

If you do the types of teamwork building listed above, you'll be amazed at the progress you will make in creating a teamwork culture, a culture that enables individuals to contribute more than they ever thought possible—together.

题目:我的工作选择:国有企业或合资企业

内容包括以下方面:

- (1)工作在国有企业的利弊
- (2)工作在合资企业的利弊
- (3)你的选择和未来打算

参考答案:

My Work Choice:State-owned Business or Joint Venture

Job hunting becomes increasingly tough for college students,for it is not only hard to be hired with a satisfying salary,but also difficult to choose a suitable work place.More and more students are to face the options between a state-owned business and a joint venture.As for me,I definitely prefer the latter.

From a personal perspective,the joint venture generally offers a higher salary than the state-owned enterprise,which tends to meet the high expectation from me.As is universally known,with more money paid,more passion will be devoted to work.On the community level,the joint venture always possesses a more cooperative meanwhile more competitive working atmosphere,making every employee fully involved in working.And I strongly believe that competition brings about progress.

In conclusion,the joint venture is much more suitable for me to work in than the state-owned business,for I prefer a higher salary,as well as a more competitive atmosphere.

您可能需要包括 5W 和 1H 元素。(谁/何时/何地/为什么/什么和如何)。

参考答案:

In Chinese and Western workplace cultures, the understanding of work is significantly different. Foreign companies generally believe that hiring an employee is to work for him and earn money for himself, so treat employees well; while Chinese bosses generally think, "I hire someone and take my salary, so I have to listen to me., work for me." This different understanding of the nature of work may lead to completely different work attitudes for employees at work.

写至少 120 字的关于因对职场文化的不同理解而引起的事件。

您可能需要包括 5W 和 1H 元素。(谁/何时/何地/为什么/什么和如何)。

参考答案:

In company workplace culture, there is a big difference between Chinese and Westerners in terms of communicative language. Chinese people mostly use "Have you eaten?", "Where are you going?" and so on when meeting each other every day, which reflects a kind of intimacy between people. But for Westerners, this way of greeting will make the other party feel sudden, embarrassed, and even unpleasant, because Westerners will understand this kind of questioning as a kind of "interrogation", and feel that the other party is asking about their private life. If you don't understand this difference between Eastern and Western cultures, unnecessary contradictions will arise.

[试题三] Write at least 100 words about an event caused by different understandings of the workplace culture. You may need to include the 5Ws and 1H elements.

参考答案:

There is a big difference between Chinese and Western workplace cultures regarding salary increases. The topic of a salary increase is a very difficult thing to talk about in the traditional Chinese workplace. In this regard, foreign companies are more open. They can treat the raise as a non-emotional thing, and have a calm discussion on the desk, while Chinese bosses, first of all, they usually don't take the initiative to raise their salary, and if you say a raise, they are likely to If the boss is disgusted, he will consider: Do you not want to do it anymore.

参考答案: When faced with the decision between working in a state-owned business and a joint venture, I would opt for a joint venture for several compelling reasons. Firstly, joint ventures often offer a more dynamic and innovative work environment. They typically combine the resources and expertise of multiple entities, fostering a culture of collaboration and creativity that can lead to faster advancements and more cutting-edge projects. Additionally, joint ventures tend to operate with greater flexibility and responsiveness to market changes, providing employees with opportunities to adapt and grow in a rapidly evolving business landscape. Lastly, the exposure to international best practices and diverse corporate cultures in a joint venture can significantly broaden one's professional horizons, enhancing career development and personal growth. These factors collectively make a joint venture an attractive choice for someone seeking a challenging, enriching, and forward-thinking career path.

2、 Write a composition of at least 100 words about an unforgettable traveling in your memory. Your writing should include the 5Ws and 1H elements. (5Ws and 1H elements: Who, What, When, 参考答案: One of the most unforgettable travels in my memory was a trip to Japan with my family. We embarked on this adventure in the spring of 2018. The What of our journey involved exploring the vibrant cities and serene temples of Kyoto, as well as marveling at the technological marvels of Tokyo. When we weren't immersed in the rich cultural heritage, we were enjoying the exquisite cuisine that Japan is renowned for. Who accompanied me were my parents and younger sister, making the experience all the more memorable with shared laughter and newfound appreciations. How we traveled was mostly by public transport, which allowed us to soak in the local way of life. Where we stayed varied from traditional inns to modern hotels, each offering a unique glimpse into Japanese hospitality. This trip left an indelible mark on my heart, broadening my horizons and fostering a deep appreciation for Japan's intricate blend of tradition and modernity.

3、 Write a composition of at least 100 words on My Dream Job. Your writing should include the followings: (1) Position: customer service representative;(2)

参考答案:

My dream job is to become a marine biologist, a profession that combines my passion for the ocean with my curiosity about marine life. As a marine biologist, I envision myself conducting research on coral reefs, studying their intricate ecosystems and the myriad species that call them home. I am fascinated by the symbiotic relationships that exist underwater and the ways in which these ecosystems are impacted by climate change and human activity. My dream job would also involve teaching and sharing my knowledge with others, whether through university lectures, public workshops, or community outreach programs. I am eager to inspire the next generation of ocean stewards and contribute to the conservation of our planet's vital marine habitats. Working in this field would not only fulfill my personal aspirations but also make a positive impact on the world.

3、Write a passage of at least 100 words according to the title and the following requirements.题目: Challenges and Opportunities for Young People

参考答案: Title: Challenges and Opportunities for Young People

In today's rapidly changing world, young people are faced with a myriad of challenges and opportunities that shape their future. The challenges are often multifaceted, ranging from the pressure to excel academically and professionally to the navigation of complex social dynamics. The rising cost of education and housing poses significant financial burdens, while the threat of climate change and social inequalities adds layers of complexity. Yet, amidst these challenges, young people also find a plethora of opportunities. The digital revolution has opened doors to unprecedented access to information and global connections, fostering innovation and entrepreneurship. Advances in technology and science provide avenues for addressing global issues, empowering youth to become agents of change. Furthermore, the increasing emphasis on diversity and inclusion encourages young people to embrace their uniqueness, contributing to a more vibrant and inclusive society. By rising to these challenges and seizing the opportunities, young people can pave the way for a brighter, more resilient future.

4、Write a passage of at least 100 words according to the title and the following requirements.题目: What is success?

参考答案:

Success is a multifaceted concept that varies greatly from person to person. For some, it may be defined by material wealth and professional achievements, such as owning a luxurious home or securing a high-paying job. Others may measure success in terms of personal growth and fulfillment, such as achieving a balanced life, nurturing meaningful relationships, or pursuing passions with unwavering dedication. Some view success as the ability to contribute positively to society, whether through volunteering, advocating for social justice, or leaving a lasting legacy. Ultimately, success is not a static destination but a continuous journey of self-discovery and fulfillment, shaped by one's values, aspirations, and life experiences. It is the pursuit of one's true potential, guided by a sense of purpose and a commitment to making a positive impact on the world.

5、Write a passage of at least 100 words according to the title and the following requirements. 题目: Where to Live, City or Countryside?主要内容: (1) Advantag 省略...

参考答案:

The debate on where to live, in the city or the countryside, often sparks vibrant discussions. City life offers a dynamic and fast-paced environment, filled with endless opportunities for career growth, cultural experiences, and social interactions. The convenience of modern amenities, such as public transportation, healthcare facilities, and shopping centers, makes city living incredibly efficient. However, the countryside provides a serene and tranquil setting, where residents can enjoy the beauty of nature, fresh air, and a slower pace of life. The strong sense of community and closer ties to nature foster a deeper sense of belonging and well-being. While the city appeals to those who thrive on excitement and diversity, the countryside beckons those seeking peace and a closer connection to the natural world. Ultimately, the choice between city and countryside depends on individual preferences and lifestyle aspirations.

6、Write a passage of at least 100 words according to the title and the following requirements.题目: How to Communicate Effectively 主要内容: (1) The importance 省略...

参考答案: Effective communication is the cornerstone of successful relationships and personal growth. To communicate effectively, one must first practice active listening, which involves fully concentrating, understanding, and responding to the speaker's message. This requires putting aside distractions and demonstrating empathy through nodding or verbal affirmations. Clarity and conciseness are also crucial; avoiding jargon and keeping sentences simple ensures that the message is easily understood. Non-verbal cues, such as body language and facial expressions, should be mindfully used to reinforce verbal communication. Additionally, being open to feedback and willing to adjust one's communication style based on the recipient's response fosters mutual respect and understanding. Lastly, maintaining patience and positivity throughout the communication process helps in creating a conducive environment for meaningful exchanges. By adhering to these principles, individuals can enhance their communication skills, leading to more harmonious interactions and fulfilling relationships.

7、Write an essay with at least 100 words on “The Importance of Having a Sense of Team Responsibility”.

参考答案： In today's interconnected world, the importance of having a sense of team responsibility cannot be overstated. A strong sense of team responsibility fosters collaboration, trust, and mutual support among team members, leading to more effective and efficient outcomes. When each individual feels accountable for their contributions and the overall success of the team, it encourages a culture of accountability and reliability. This, in turn, boosts morale and enhances productivity, as team members are more motivated to work towards common goals. Moreover, a sense of team responsibility cultivates problem-solving skills and adaptability, as team members learn to rely on each other's strengths and address weaknesses collectively. In a globalized economy where teamwork is paramount, possessing a sense of team responsibility is not just an asset but a necessity for achieving both personal and organizational success.

8、Write an essay with at least 100 words on “How to work well in a team”.

参考答案： Working well in a team requires a blend of interpersonal skills, adaptability, and a commitment to common goals. First and foremost, effective communication is vital. Team members should practice active listening, clearly articulate their ideas, and provide constructive feedback. Open and honest dialogue fosters trust and mutual respect, which are essential for cohesive teamwork. Additionally, recognizing and respecting each team member's strengths and weaknesses allows for a more balanced workload and enhances overall productivity. Flexibility and adaptability are also key; being open to new ideas and willing to adjust one's approach as needed ensures smoother collaboration. Lastly, maintaining a positive attitude and a willingness to support one's teammates through challenges and successes cultivates a positive team culture, where everyone feels valued and motivated to contribute their best. By embracing these principles, individuals can work more effectively within a team, leading to greater accomplishments and a more enjoyable work environment.

10、Write at least 100 words about an event caused by different understandings of the workplace culture. Your writing should include the 5Ws and 1H elements. (5Ws and 1H elements: Who,

参考答案： What: A significant misunderstanding occurred in a mid-sized marketing firm, leading to tension among team members and a temporary halt in project progress.

Who: The incident involved the newly hired project manager, Sarah, and the seasoned marketing team led by John.

Where: The event unfolded in the firm's open-plan office, where different departments sit in close proximity.

When: The misunderstanding took place during a weekly team meeting, held on a Tuesday afternoon.

Why: Sarah, who had previously worked in a more formal corporate environment, approached tasks with a structured and hierarchical mindset. In contrast, the marketing team at her new firm operated under a more relaxed and collaborative culture, valuing creativity and informality.

How: During the meeting, Sarah's strict adherence to deadlines and processes clashed with the team's flexible and creative approach. This led to confusion and frustration, as team members felt constrained by new, unforeseen rules. The situation was resolved through a follow-up meeting, where Sarah and John discussed and agreed on a hybrid approach that balanced structure with creativity.
